Robert Dibbles, who is homeless and gay, works as a youth advocate for The Night Ministry in Boystown. "The homeless youth here, they are my family," he said.

DAVID PIERINI/TRIBUNE

Young, gay & homeless

Recent violence in Boystown highlights struggles of transient community

Chicago Tribune

Feet aching in worn-out gym shoes, Robert Dibbles walks the streets of East Lakeview, always on an uncertain path.

Dibbles, 24, sought refuge in Boystown six years ago, soon after announcing to family and friends in Olympia Fields that he is gay.

He said he has slept on the train and in the park, broken into boarded-up buildings in search of shelter and bartered sex for a bed. When he is unable to find a place to sleep, Dibbles said he walks through the night.

"When you are homeless, you do what you have to do to survive," said the lanky young man, eyes fixed behind wire-rimmed glasses on the foot traffic moving along Halsted Street.

"I am not alone," he said, gesturing toward the group gathering near the corner. "The homeless youth here, they are my family."

Experts say Dibbles is among a growing number of LGBT young people struggling with homelessness. In Chicago, many come to Boystown from the South and West sides seeking a haven.

THE NUMBERS CHALLENGE

Getting a census of the LGBT homeless youths, especially those who are not sleeping in shelters or accessing other services, can be difficult. As a result, there is no consensus about the pervasiveness of the problem.

While they account for 5 to 10 percent of the youth population, gay and transgender youths are estimated to make up 20 to 40 percent of the young people experiencing homelessness nationally, according to a 2010 report by the Center for American Progress.

In Chicago, 11,471 young people ages 14-21 experienced homelessness last year, according to the Chicago Coalition for the Homeless.

The issue of LGBT homeless youths, here and in other cities, has captured the attention of policymakers. Federal officials will come to Chicago this summer to train service providers on how to reach this population.

In Boystown, the young people also have the attention of residents and police, especially since a recent fight between groups of youths passing along Halsted, where a 25-year-old man suffered stab wounds.

The incident, captured on video and broadcast widely, spotlighted the bubbling anxieties in Boystown about the influx of young people of color. It also put homeless LGBT youths, many of whom seek assistance at the Center on Halsted, on the defensive.

There is no indication the victim or the man charged in his attack are homeless. Still, many residents are calling on police to crack down on the transient young people who walk the streets at night.

Hundreds of people attended a recent Community Alternative Policing Strategy meeting in Lakeview, where some speakers complained they were fearful of the loitering youths.

"They come to this neighborhood because they feel safe and because they have found service providers who are willing to help them; now they find themselves caught in the middle of an intense debate," said Barbara Bolsen, vice president of programs for The Night Ministry, a Chicago nonprofit that has worked with LGBT youths in Lakeview for decades.

The police try to walk a line of building trust with the LGBT homeless youths while trying to maintain order, Town Hall District Cmdr. Kathleen Boehmer suggested.

"The youth generally have a lot of energy, and we have been able to provide positive activities for them to direct those energies," Boehmer said in an email. "Many have worked side by side with police officers on community projects such as the Children's Christmas Party and National Night Out."

"Although we try to direct street-based youth to services that can help them, some of the youth break into buildings for shelter or steal food to eat. They understand that we have a job to do, and sometimes they get caught and arrested. ...

"We also stress that people who commit violent crimes in the neighborhoods have crossed another line where it's no longer about survival. The legal consequences are larger."

This broken leg goes out to LiLo

If you want to increase the odds that you will not break some part of your leg, it's probably best that we never hang out.

Freshman year of college, my roommate Jeremy tore the bejesus out of his meniscus and ACL playing—wait for it—Frisbee golf. A couple of years back I wrote a column asking if anyone wanted to go on a date with my friend Brian, who had broken his ankle. (RedEye's readership produced no interested parties.) Recently my roommate Erik broke the everloving hell out of his leg rounding second in a game of kickball.

And his leg didn't just break—it, like, exploded. His doctor said it looked like he'd jumped off a three-story building.

So we know that something about being my friend inevitably leads to freak leg mishaps. Other than worrying about the karmic consequences of this, I've had to spend a disproportionate amount of my life waiting for my crippled friends to hobble along. Jeremy did have this one great game he played on our way to the dining hall where he'd wait till he got into the middle of the street when a car was coming, then drop a crutch, bend and lower himself to retrieve it, and then drop the other crutch. He'd repeat this until the driver of the car looked like he might take the charge for vehicular manslaughter. You can only imagine how hilarious 19-year-old Steve Markley found this (not that it's too lowbrow for the 27-year-old incarnation).

My point is that Jeremy, Brian, Erik and I have all made great lemonade out of the lemons of their misfortune.

For instance, Erik and I have come up with what could be the greatest reality TV show of all time. Lindsay Lohan goes back under house arrest, and then Erik is mostly stranded in our apartment—and that's the show. Erik and Lindsay Lohan living in our apartment. Erik is a big ginger charmbag who enjoys ice cream sandwiches and keeping garbage on the floor, and Lindsay Lohan is blonde bombshell tabloid catnip. We throw them together, rig up some cameras and watch the shenanigans ensue. Maybe we'll give them some cocaine, too—I don't know, I'm just spitballing here.

Whatever the case, we'll all be billionaires before the first episode is over.

And isn't that what life is about? Because the bonds of friendship are tested over the years by so many things far worse than a broken leg, you tend to forget that it was a freak accident that lead you and a friend to some of your most cherished time together: riffing on each other's jokes, dwelling on all that great gallows humor that life provides and learning as if for the first time that friendship is its own innate kind of love.

Also, they've all looked real funny on their stupid crutches, the masturbating jerks.

REACHING OUT TO YOUTHS IS ONE STEP IN ACTIVISTS' PUSH TO REVIVE ENGLEWOOD

By Tracy Swartz

REDEYE

For once, the news wasn't grim. It wasn't another story about too many crimes and foreclosures and too few jobs and fresh food options.

No, there was good news out of Englewood this year. Derrick Rose, perhaps the neighborhood's most valuable native, was named the NBA's most valuable player—the youngest in league history.

But while Englewood activists told RedEye they were glad for a positive spotlight, they're not ready to celebrate just yet. Though Rose was able to carry his team to the Eastern Conference finals, he won't be able to carry Englewood on his own, community leaders say.

There's much work to be done in the community area, which runs roughly from Garfield Boulevard to 75th Street on the south and Western Avenue to State Street on the east. Englewood lost nearly 25 percent of its population from 2000-10, the third-largest decline of any of Chicago's 77 community areas, according to recently released Census numbers.

Plus, the area has some of the city's highest crime numbers. Sixty-three homicides—mostly black men in their late teens or early 20s shot to death in the street or on the sidewalk—were recorded there from January 2008 through last month, according to a RedEye analysis of police data.

Englewood activists blame the community's problems on the lack of jobs and positive role models. They realize it's going to take more than just one role model to energize the community, but they hope to build upon his star.

Take Jean Carter-Hill, for example, a community activist who runs Imagine Englewood If, an organization that tries to empower youths through mentoring and nutrition classes.

Because sports are so popular in her neighborhood, Carter-Hill is pushing for it to get a community center—a safe place for kids to hang out after school.

In the meantime, Powerade has pledged to donate at least $15,000 to the Chicago Park District to restore the basketball courts at Murray Park, where Rose played as a kid.

Park District spokeswoman Marta Juaniza said the district and Powerade are in talks for further capital improvements.

For Mark Harris, a lifelong Englewood resident, a park refurbishment is not enough.

"You're giving people a basketball but you're not giving them a book," said Harris, 39. "A park is not going to change the condition of black people."

Harris said he is trying to change the state of his neighborhood through unconventional means: a film festival.

The first Englewood Film Festival is set for Oct. 21-22, said Harris, a documentary filmmaker who recently wrote, directed and produced "Black Butterfly" about an Olympic swimming hopeful.

In addition to screening films, the festival will include etiquette classes on how to dress, how to hold utensils and how to speak in public—skills Harris believes will empower Englewood youths to succeed.

Harris said he expects 300-500 people to attend the festival, which he created because he saw a disconnect between other film festivals and the inner-city community.

Harris said he's seen his community change for the worse during the past few decades.

"When I was coming up, it was more family driven," Harris said. "People in the community, we stuck by one another. Today it's not like that. Everyone's out for themselves."

It's no secret that Englewood has fallen on hard times. The community area had 1,091 incidents of violent crime in the past 12 months, according to data posted on chicagopolice.org. Englewood had the fourth-most incidents of violent crime, behind Austin, South Shore and West Englewood, respectively, the data shows.

Last year, paperwork for 323 foreclosures were filed and 335 foreclosures were completed in Englewood, according to the Chicago Rehab Network, a coalition of neighborhood and community based development organizations.

And, like other areas of Chicago, Englewood suffered from “black flight,” where middle-class black residents left the community for the suburbs. Englewood lost about 24 percent of its black population from 2000-10, according to Census numbers.

Terrance Hoffman, 41, grew up in Englewood and moved to Atlanta as a teenager—but he returned in 2003.

“I wanted to give a positive role model for people. In that neighborhood it’s either you make it or you leave,” said Hoffman, who works in marketing for a grocery chain. “I wanted to come back ... show people I punch a clock. Let them see another type of side, a positive side.”

Hoffman said his neighborhood is in desperate need of positive role models.

“It’s been needing a boost for a long time,” Hoffman said. “I believe that Englewood can be the new Brooklyn. I believe it can be vibrant.” TSWARTZ@TRIBUNE.COM | @TRACYSWARTZ

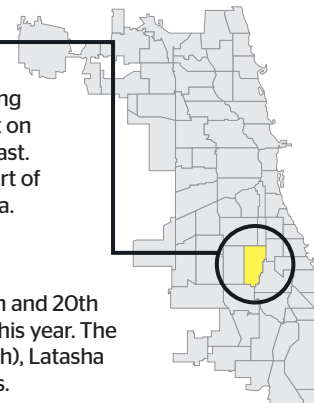

A NEIGHBORHOOD DECONSTRUCTED

ENGLEWOOD

Between aldermanic elections and population losses, Englewood has seen some big changes this year. RedEye looks at the community area by the numbers. T.S.

Mile by mile

The Englewood community area is 3.07 square miles, according to city data. The area, which includes Kennedy-King College, runs roughly from Garfield Boulevard to 75th Street on the south and from Western Avenue to State Street on the east. The area includes most of the Englewood neighborhood. Part of the neighborhood is in the West Englewood community area.

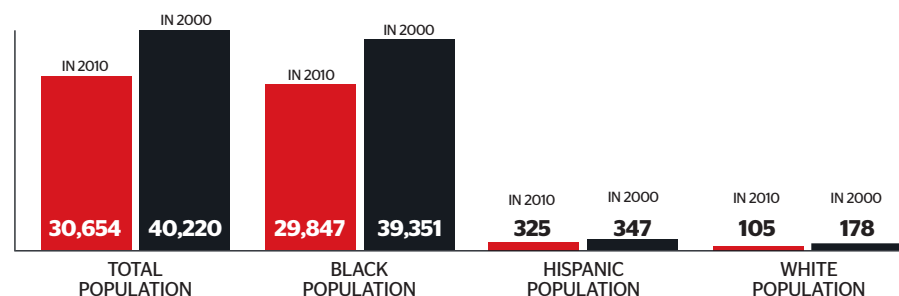

They’ve got the power

The community area spans five wards: the 3rd, 6th, 16th, 17th and 20th wards. Ald. Roderick Sawyer (6th), unseated an incumbent this year. The other four aldermen, Pat Dowell (3rd), Joann Thompson (16th), Latasha Thomas (17th) and Willie Cochran (20th), retained their seats.

Count on it

Englewood had the third-highest percentage of population loss, 23.8 percent, of all the community areas from 2000-2010, recently released Census numbers show. Riverdale had the greatest percentage of population loss at 33.9 percent, followed by Douglas at 31.1 percent.

The young and the restless

Children and teenagers make up a large portion of Englewood’s population, according to 2009 American Community Survey estimates provided by the Metro Chicago Information Center.

Hot enough for ya?

No deaths reported, but officials wary as heat indexes expected to hit triple digits all week

Chicago Tribune

Hundreds of music fans lined up along Ashland Avenue before the gates opened at the Pitchfork Music Festival, enduring a relentless midday sun in exchange for the best vantage points around the festival stages.

Though Pitchfork's crowd skewed fashion-forward, comfort took precedent over style. Mostly.

"I saw someone in a sweatshirt yesterday," said Jeff Mather, of Cleveland, who brought a 3-liter bottle of water to the gate Sunday. "I was really confused."

Across Chicago, residents turned to fluids, fans and air conditioners to cope with extreme heat that is expected to last through the week. The heat index hit 103 on the lakefront Sunday, and similar figures are expected until at least Friday, according to the National Weather Service. Forecasters called for high temperatures in the upper 90s for most of the week, intensified by soupy humidity.

The city is in the middle of the prime time for dangerous heat and humidity.

About 37 percent of the nearly 2,000 days in which temperatures reached 90 degrees in Chicago from 1928 through last year were in July, more than any other month, according to data gathered at Midway Airport and analyzed by WGN-TV meteorologists.

Twelve percent of those days fell between July 15 and 23, WGN-TV meteorologist Tom Skilling said.

While the Chicago area is accustomed to hot mid-summer stretches, the most notorious heat wave remains the deadly July 1995 stretch that killed more than 700 area residents.

Forecasters said temperatures this week are unlikely to match those conditions—and no deaths were reported in the current heat wave as of Sunday.

"Faith and reason must go together. You must investigate reality. Nobody can say, 'I know everything.' "

M-Rahm moves cops off desk duty

Chicago Tribune

Mayor Emanuel announced plans to assign 92 more police officers—including several dozen from administrative jobs in City Hall and police headquarters—to beat patrols as part of his effort to boost the number of cops in neighborhoods hit hard by crime.

More than half of the officers are new graduates of the Chicago Police Academy, while 39 were pulled from desk jobs throughout the department.

The latest plan raised the number of police officers reassigned to the districts to nearly 750 in the past three months, said Emanuel, who pledged to add 1,000 officers to the beat patrols during his campaign for mayor.

“We have gone through line by line ... to get to a total of 750 officers who are now out in our communities and our neighborhoods and our blocks throughout our city,” Emanuel announced at Palmer Park in Roseland, a neighborhood routinely among the hardest hit by violent crime.

Critics noted that the move simply shuffled existing resources to different positions, and did not actually add any officers to the ranks. But Emanuel defended the plan as part of his desire to beef up the number of officers who are deployed on a daily basis within Chicago’s communities.

Mayor Emanuel (right) visits Sunday with Timothy Fishburne, who recently moved into Roseland.

Anthony walks free

4 Casey Anthony walked free from a Florida jail early Sunday, three years and one day after she was arrested for her role in the disappearance and, eventually, death of her 2-year-old daughter.

Anthony walked out of the front door of the Orange County Jail at 12:09 a.m. with her lawyer by her side and two Special Response Team officers with green vests.

With $537.68 from her inmate account handed to her, Anthony offered a quick thanks to a Special Response Team sergeant. She then walked out of the jail building doors and into a dark-colored SUV.

Her hair was pulled up in a tight bun and she had on a bright pink V-neck T-shirt, blue jeans and sneakers. She did not show any emotion.

Throngs of TV camera crews and a crowd of about 1,000 people were on hand outside the jail to witness the release.

As Anthony left, some demonstrators shouted and jeered. Some screamed, "Killer!"

The Orlando woman's release came 12 days after a jury acquitted her on murder and child neglect charges. That verdict brought an abrupt end to a six-week trial that drew intense media hype for its elements of family drama and mystery over what happened to

WHAT'S NEXT?

Given the threats against her life by those furious at the verdict, Casey Anthony's lawyers have not said where she will go next. News helicopters that tracked Anthony's SUV after it left jail showed it head to downtown Orlando and into the parking garage at the office of her lawyer, Cheney Mason.

young Caylee Anthony.

Anthony was initially taken into custody July 16, 2008, and had been jailed—with some brief exceptions, having been freed on bail on multiple occasions—for most of the past three years.

Mubarak in, out of coma

5 Hosni Mubarak, the onetime Egyptian strongman who was toppled by a popular uprising in February, has regained consciousness after lapsing into a coma Sunday, a top hospital official said. Mubarak faces trial in August on charges of ordering police to kill anti-government protesters during the uprising.

Chavez seeks cancer treatment

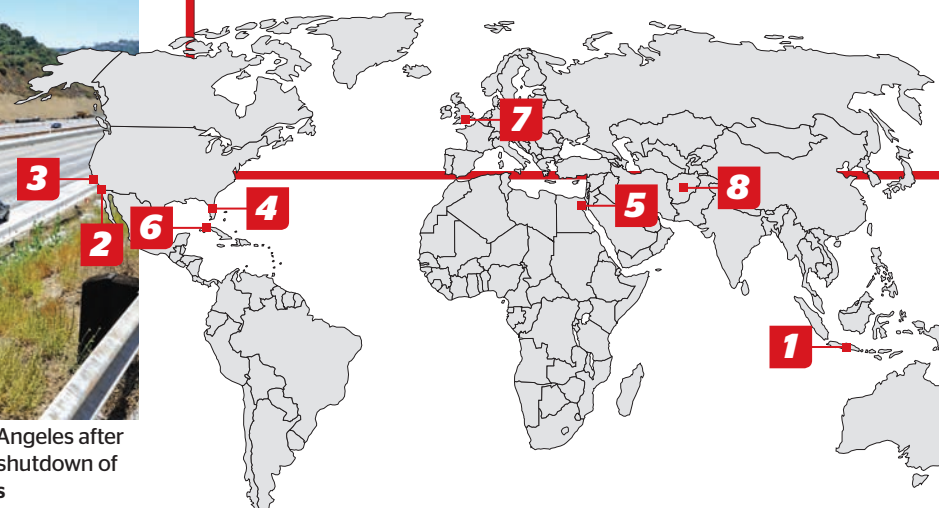

6 Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez arrived Saturday in Cuba, where he is expected to continue cancer treatment. Chavez returned to the Caribbean nation less than a month after he left, following treatment for an undisclosed type of cancer. It is not clear how long he plans to stay in Cuba, where he plans to start chemotherapy.

Hacking scandal touches police

7 London's police chief, Sir Paul Stephenson, said Sunday that he intends to resign from his post as a result of the widening phone-hacking scandal that has rocked his department. News of the World editor Rebekah Brooks also was arrested Sunday in connection with investigations into phone hacking and police bribery, her spokesman told CNN.

Power shift in Afghanistan

8 The first stage of the NATO handover to Afghan security forces began Sunday, marked with a ceremony at a police station in Afghanistan's Bamiyan province. Last week, the first batch of U.S. soldiers left Afghanistan, beginning a drawdown of 10,000 American troops scheduled to leave by year's end.

Dejected U.S. goalkeeper Hope Solo looks on during her team's loss to Japan in the World Cup final Sunday in Germany. GETTY IMAGES

Soccer shocker

Can you believe it? Final World Cup miracle belongs to Japan

MCT

FRANKFURT, Germany This time, there was no miraculous, late game-winning goal. There was no sports bra-bearing celebration. No third World Cup title for the U.S.

Japan toppled the heavily favored U.S. 3-1 in a penalty shootout Sunday to be crowned women's world champions for the first time in the country's history.

For a while, it looked as if the U.S. would win its first World Cup since 1999. A second-half goal from substitute Alex Morgan gave the Olympic champs what appeared to be a victory in regulation time in Frankfurt, but a late goal from Aya Minama sent the match into extra time.

Abby Wambach put the U.S. ahead once again in the 104th minute, but Homare Sawa saved Japan with three minutes of extra time remaining.

There still was time for Azusa Iwashimizu to be sent off for a foul before the game went into a penalty shootout, where Japan goalkeeper Ayumi Kaihori saved two penalties and Saki Kumagai netted the all-important spot-kick to give Japan the win.

"It's not possible to explain, sometimes they go in, sometimes not," a disappointed U.S. coach Pia Sundhage said after seeing her team miss three of its penalty kicks. "We should have used the chances we had."

It was the first time in 26 matches Japan beat the U.S., which won the World Cup in 1991 and 1999.

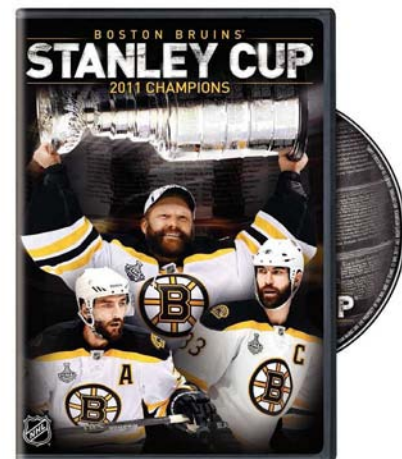

The Americans, cheered on in Frankfurt by many U.S. military personnel stationed in Germany, also had backing from President Obama, who tweeted during the game, and Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, who had vowed to watch Sunday's final.

"It's a bitter defeat," U.S. defender Alex Krieger said. "We played well. It's very disappointing. Japan played well too. It was a great match but we didn't do it. We didn't take advantage of chances and we also made some defensive mistakes."

Krieger told Germany's ARD TV she had no explanation for a defensive blunder that gave Japan its first tying goal.

"Unfortunately we gave them a gift with that goal," she said. "I didn't see what happened. But I still think we played well. We're happy that we won the silver medal. It's disappointing but I think we played well." REUTERS CONTRIBUTED

Sure, it wasn't the Blackhawks, but watching heated rival Vancouver fall to the Boston Bruins is almost as satisfying. Almost.

ATTEND

Sky vs. Seattle Storm

6 p.m. Tuesday, Allstate Arena

The Sky have lost five straight on the road, but at the cozy confines of Allstate Arena they are 6-2. Add it all up and it equals fourth place in the WNBA's Eastern Conference.

ATTEND

U.S. Gymnastics' CoverGirl Classic

Friday-Sunday, UIC Pavilion

In addition to Olympic silver medalist Shawn Johnson, local gymnasts Bridgette Caquatto, Mackenzie Caquatto, both of Naperville, Anna Li of Aurora and Wesley Stephenson of Plainfield will compete.

ATTEND

Fire vs. Manchester United

4 p.m. Saturday, Toyota Park, ESPN2

The team that made David Beckham famous—or is it vice versa?—continues its U.S. tour with a friendly vs. our Fire. It's the soccer event of the summer. Sorry, U.S. women's team.

ATTEND

Rush vs. Milwaukee Iron

7 p.m. Saturday, Allstate Arena

The Rush won the Central Division title, secured the No. 2 seed in the playoffs and racked up a record 13th regular-season win Saturday in Dallas. They're too good not to see in person, so get on that.

For some reason, Ernest felt Pitchfork was a better way to spend his Sunday afternoon than watching the U.S. women's team. Boo.

1 What will you remember about this U.S. women's soccer team?

I attended Pitchfork all weekend, folks ...

They kept their shirts on. Darn it.

Wambach's header in the Brazil game. Her dome was so friggin' clutch all tourney long.

That Hope can only take you so far.

Abby Wambach and her good headers.

2 Who is this team's Brandi Chastain?

... there were some people dressed like some damn fools. Me included.

The fat kid who did half-Truffle Shuffle, half-Brandi Chastain in the stands during the final.

Forget taking off your shirt—the U.S. got caught with its pants down.

Hope "cooler than Han" Solo.

Hope Solo. I can't even tell you some of the disgusting photo searches I've been asked to run on her.

3 What did we learn from the Blackhawks Convention?

Also, remind me to tell you all what a Patrick Ewing shot is one day.

Patrick Kane can keep pounding them back despite an injury to his drinking hand.

The Kaner Shuffle will never die!

Even with the Hawks off the ice, they're still more exciting and successful than the Cubs.

Jonathan Toews can joke around. So, he's not a cyborg then. He's back on my "exterminate" list.

4 Why can't the Cubs find a permanent closer?

My head hurts and I'm sore.

You'd need something to close, don't you?

Strange, 'cause most people are willing to work once every three weeks for a full salary.

Or an ace? Or a leadoff hitter? Or a manager? Or a GM? Do you want me to keep going?

Why can't the Cubs do anything correctly?

5 What makes Ozzie Guillen one of the top 100 sports tweeters?

Let's try this again Wednesday, yeah guys? I love you all.

Peeples like bad spellers.

He appeals to speakers of English, Spanish and Ozzie.

Nobody hashtags #KennySucks better than Ozzie.

His eloquence, no doubt.

Fans watch highlights from last season during the fourth annual Blackhawks Convention on Friday at the Hilton Chicago. BRENT LEWIS/TRIBUNE

HAWKS' EYE

The fourth annual Blackhawks Convention came to an end Sunday, probably a little too soon for hockey-starved fans. What began with the bombshell of Patrick Kane needing wrist surgery closed quietly. Here's some of what went on Sunday at the Hilton Chicago.

LEAVING VANCOUVER: Vancouver native Brent Seabrook moved out of the British Columbia city after the Hawks' first-round post-season loss to the rival Canucks. "I had to get out of there," he said. "I moved up to Kelowna. We took possession of our place right before the finals started. It was good for me to get out of the city—it was pretty crazy there."

MY CAPTAIN: Captain Jonathan Toews is looking forward to a more boisterous dressing room following the team's offseason moves. "I'll never say anything bad about our locker room last year [and] I don't want to take anything away from some of those guys, but we definitely want to add some of that charisma and personality," Toews said. "A noisy and energetic locker room is always better than one that's the opposite."

PAT-OF-ALL-TRADES: It appears Patrick Sharp will spend additional time at center next season. Normally a winger, Sharp has been the No. 2 center for much of the past two seasons. "I'm sure if I start at center I'll play some games at wing and if I start on the wing I'll play some games at center," he said. "It's an asset to be able to play all positions. I really don't care as long as I'm on a line that's working."

GAME PLANNER

» Golfer Darren Clarke put a long stretch of lean years behind him Sunday, staving off challenges from Phil Mickelson and Dustin Johnson for a three-stroke triumph in the British Open at Royal St. George's.

» Cincinnati Bengals running back and former Bears first-round draft pick Cedric Benson was arrested early Sunday in Texas and charged with assault causing bodily injury to a family member, espn.com reported.

"A group of us from across the street were invited for the soft opening and it was a wonderful evening. The room is beautiful, the chefs were entertaining and the food was great. Finally a place close [enough] to have sushi and a glass of wine and walk home." —ERINCRIS

MEH.

"It looks great from the outside and has a beautiful interior. Unfortunately, it stopped there. They profess to specialize in sushi, but there doesn't appear to be anyone to set reasonable standards. Commercial-grade tuna and imitation crab meat tell me they [are] more interested in the bottom line than producing good food." —BIKERIDER

The Black Sheep

1132 W. Grand Ave. 312-997-5100

YEAH!

"From start to finish, we were blown away by the level of service: efficient, knowledgeable and not pushy. I am huge foodie and I have to say the dishes were so unique and flavorful. The chicken thigh was out of this world and the mutton was so good I asked if I could order one to-go for tomorrow's lunch. It was insane!" —CHIROCKS68

MEH.

"I live in the neighborhood and was very excited to have this new restaurant opening. The food is ... teenie tiny, they are trying to be ultra-fancy but the flavors didn't seem to go well together. Unless this place alters the menu, increases the portions and reduces the price ... I recommend avoiding this place." —MRIVERWEST

LENNY GILMORE/REDEYE

The Burger Philosophy 1541 W. Bryn Mawr Ave. 773-944-0373

This Andersonville burger spot raises the bar on fast food by grounding its beef and cutting its fries on site, but the prices aren't going over well with everyone.

YEAH!

"I had the Devil's Advocate [burger.] It was fantastic! The burger is very spicy, but not to the point where it's overwhelming. The burger took a little bit to come out, around 12 minutes, but it was also very busy in the restaurant and you are, after all, getting a fresh burger. I will definitely come back again!" —SOXFAN1983

MEH.

"Based on the appearance of the restaurant (looks like any other burger joint in a small strip shopping center), we assumed that this would be a reasonably priced option in the area. After adding everything into the cash register we were told that our fast-food meal [for two] was $28! If the prices were lower, I would go to this place on occasion, but otherwise will go somewhere else for my burgers." —RAVENSWOODGUY

'Fork yeah!

Sights at the Pitchfork Music Festival

Who's still thirsty? The heat, Odd Future and the heat were all the talk of the three-day Pitchfork Music Festival that wrapped up Sunday in Union Park. Did we mention it was hot? Odd Future Wolf Gang Kill Them All, the rap group that has drawn criticism for its lyrics about violence against women and gays, did not back down from critics. "Kill people! Burn [bleep]! [Bleep] school!" the group said near the end of its set, the Tribune's Greg Kot reports. Here are some of our favorite pics from the sweat-drenched fest. Visit redeyechicago.com for lots more photos from Pitchfork.

JENNIFER SHEPHERD

read more @ lipstickmystic.com

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! Cancer
June 22-July 22
You've been picking up on somebody's lusty vibes, and maybe it's time to do something about it. Sensitive Venus has you considering a hot lusty encounter with someone just for the sake of having fun. You go, girl.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22
As the sun moves through your sign for four weeks, this is your personal New Year. It's time to let go of anybody toxic. Start thinking "Brad Pitt" as you fantasize about your next romantic partner.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22
The moon and Mercury are creating a bit of a drag, and you probably feel beaten up by your current romantic situation. Sometimes you have to walk away from battles you stand no chance of winning. Either agree to disagree, or consider breaking up.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23
You could be reconsidering an old romance, remembering all the good times. But the moon warns against hooking up with that person. You suffer from poor boundaries, so don't put out your "I'm available again" sign.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21
Two planets are teaming up to make you more psychic than ever. You'll know that your guy is bringing you flowers before he walks in the door.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21
A friendly sun will increase your sexual mojo for a few weeks. If you're single, you'll be overwhelmed by people asking you out and wanting to get to know you. If you're in a relationship, things will get steamier.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19
You're feeling pretty confident as Jupiter boosts your ego. You realize that changes in your personal life are inevitable, just like the spawning of a new "Real Housewives" TV series. You're OK with it.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18
You could have a missed connection as Mercury creates some temporary glitches. You'll accidentally show up three hours late to a date. Don't sweat it.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20
Flirtation is in the air, courtesy of Venus. You'll want to share intimate time with someone sensitive, considerate and funny—just like you. Keep searching for a soulmate. Just avoid doing so at a fraternity party, bus stop or gas station bathroom.

Aries March 21-April 19
Uranus is encouraging you to add some kink to the bedroom. It's not enough to do the boring "Saturday dinner and a movie" routine. Think more along the lines of "boldly making love on a rooftop somewhere" if you want to get that blood pumping.

Taurus April 20-May 20
Stop listening to those negative voices—those that are always saying, "You're too fat! You're too bald! The sun is urging you to release negative programs and work on improving your self-esteem.

Gemini May 21-June 21
As Mercury prepares to go retrograde, slow down. You've been having fun with someone, and that's cool, but don't try to make it into something it isn't. Avoid purchasing a wedding dress, pricing cozy condos or adopting a puppy together.

TRACK-OFF

'Snow Night'
Young General

'She My Baby'
Zay feat. Spinal & Don V

Listen to both at redeyechicago.com/kylesfiles

Young General and Zay, with an assist from Spinal and Don V., are the latest champs in the Kyles Files' contest for local artists. Young General's "Snow Night" was an ode to the high life with gritty samples of Jay-Z and Notorious B.I.G., while Zay stole the hearts of track-off voters with "She My Baby," a hip-hop love song with lush keyboards and urgent percussion. Vote in a new competition every Monday.

KYRA KYLES, REDEYE

TV 'Magic Beyond Words: The J.K. Rowling Story'

7 p.m. Monday, Lifetime

With the final Harry Potter movie in theaters, Pottermania is at a fever pitch. Sounds like the perfect time for an unauthorized, somewhat silly biopic about a poor muggle named Jo Rowling (Poppy Montgomery) who became known as J.K., the fabulously wealthy creator of Harry and Hogwarts. There's not a lot of magic in this bland movie, but older Potterphiles likely will hang on every moment. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

HOT AND COLD

PLAIN WHITE T'S CAN TAKE THE CHICAGO HEAT—AND THE CANADIAN FREEZE

Tim Lopez just managed to beat this week's 90-degree heat when he and his Plain White T's bandmates performed at Old St. Pat's World's Largest Block Party on Friday, but he said he wouldn't have minded too much even if he had to play in it.

For one, Lopez lives in Austin, Texas, where, he claimed, the temperatures have been a scorching 105 degrees lately. Secondly, the "Hey There Delilah" band has dealt with far harsher conditions.

"We played a show [in Brandon, Manitoba] last year where it was so cold, you should've been dead if you went outside," Lopez, the lone member of the band who doesn't live in the Chicago area, said after Friday's sound check. "It was negative-15

NO NEW ALBUM—YET

While lead singer Tom Higgenson said he has been writing songs, a new Plain White T's album is not in the works. The band still is promoting its latest album, "Wonders of the Younger," and the single "Boomerang." "I'm writing some songs, but I'm not yet thinking about the next album or what it's going to be," Higgenson said. "I'm just having fun writing songs."

Fahrenheit. We contemplated canceling. Everything on our bodies was numb. We asked the promoter, 'Isn't this dangerous for people?' He said, 'Yeah, a girl got frostbite all over her foot last year.'

"We ended up racing through the songs. After each song, we would take a minute to sit in front of the heaters to let our hands thaw."

» "Harry Potter" star Matthew Lewis hung out at Hub 51 and Paris Club's upper level lounge, Studio Paris, on Thursday after appearing at Navy Pier's IMAX and AMC River East movie theater. "I am very hungover," he tweeted Friday. "I am very busy. This is an ill-advised combination."

» Actress Kristin Chenoweth was spotted on the patio of Hugo's Frog Bar & Fish House on Saturday.

» White Sox manager Ozzie Guillen dined at Lillie's Q on Wednesday and then headed to Second City with his family to see "Southside of Heaven."

» "Mad Men" actor Vincent Kartheiser and the Blackhawks' Patrick Kane dined separately Friday at Sunda.

» Smashing Pumpkins frontman Billy Corgan dined at Tavern on Rush on July 8. Charles S. Dutton, in town filming the FX pilot "Powers," hung out in the VIP section of Tavern on Rush on July 10. His co-star, Jason Patric, dined at Viaggio Ristorante in the West Loop on July 9.

» Late-night talk show host Craig Ferguson had an early dinner at David Burke's Primehouse in The James Hotel on July 9.

» Porn star Ron Jeremy played pingpong at Streeter's Tavern in River North on Tuesday.

Dog days

Miley Cyrus has a new companion, and she can't seem to keep her hands off of him. His name is Floyd, and he's a dog. Cyrus was photographed with the pooch Friday and later introduced him on Twitter, online.com reports. "I'm so in love with him it is ridiculous," she wrote. Aww!

Hell yeah, I want some

How much does it cost to stuff your face like Cartman? $2.99. To celebrate the 15th season of "South Park," Comedy Central has created 1.5 million bags of Cheesy Poofs that will be sold exclusively at Wal-Mart. Now all we need is for the network to make us some punch and pie.

Going into overtime

Coach Taylor and Co. might have another state title in them. "Friday Night Lights," the book that became a movie that became a TV show, might be headed back to the big screen. Peter Berg, who produced the TV show, confirmed to tvguide.com that he's developing a film version. Score another one for the underdog.

Welcome to Splitsville

Jennifer Lopez and Marc Anthony (right) are singing a sad tune. The couple announced their split Friday to E! News, one month after celebrating their seventh anniversary. They won't be able to avoid each other at work though—their reality show, "Q'viva! The Chosen" still will continue as scheduled.

Lady Gaga may have just crossed the wrong gay icon. After Gaga performed a concert in Sydney in a wheelchair dressed as a mermaid, Bette Midler turned to Twitter to remind the pop star that she started the mermaid/wheelchair bit 30 years ago. "I've been doing singing mermaid in a wheelchair since 1980—You can keep the meat dress and the firecracker [bleeps]—mermaid's mine."

Movie magic

It took a wizard to bring down Batman. "Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part 2" cast a spell over the box office during the weekend, setting numerous records as the film franchise comes to an end, online.com reports. Check out the staggering numbers—and this is just in the U.S. and Canada.

$168.6 MILLION

Record-setting opening weekend earnings. That beat the three-day record of $158.4 million set by "The Dark Knight" in 2008.

$92.1 M

Biggest opening day ever.

$43.5 M

Highest-grossing midnight showing ever.

$15.1 M

Biggest Imax opening weekend ever.

"I don't get asked out ever, so I was very flattered by that."

—Justin Timberlake, confirming that he will attend a Marine Corps Ball with a Marine who asked him out on YouTube, according to CNN. Really, JT? Never?
